Through ice and snow with all-wheel-drive

Winter is knocking on our doors, bringing along severe road conditions, cold temperatures, snow and ice. Once a car gets out of control, sliding around, one wishes to have an all-wheel-drive on hand. For that reason we have analysed a few of the smaller SUVs for you.

Service behavior shows clearly that the lowest priced vehicle will not automatically remain the less expensive one. Examining the assumptive duration of 75,000 km/60 month reveals cost variances of more than 50% only for service expenditure. These abnormal deviations originate from variations among mandatory service intervals, varying labour times or additional spending for replacing timing belts or changing axle and gear box lubricants.

The lesson is clear, before having 4x4-fun in the snow overall costs should be examined and analysed closely.
