

AuDaCon AG / AuDaConEXTRA bundles know-how for individual concepts

Customised products for each customer requirement

Technical data and information play an important role in different areas and in diverse contents. No matter if it is about mounting guidelines for spare parts, the allocation of part numbers to vehicles or the development of individual software solutions – everywhere vehicle or manufacturer related data is needed. This is where the AuDaCon AG comes into play.

The customers of AuDaCon are as different as the solutions that are realised under the product name AuDaConEXTRA. Basis for all individual solutions are information and original data derived from vehicle manufacturers as well as from the automotive and spare parts industry. This is besides the close relatedness to practical usability the decisive linking element between the different projects by which the software and data specialists of AuDaCon give customer requirements a concrete format that means a customised product.

In the beginning of each project, listening to the customer, in order to understand the concrete requirements, is the most important fact", explains marketing director Ralf Mühlbichler the approach to an EXTRA task. What follows is the individual product planning, coordination and implementation. On demand the data specialists take care for that modifications and technical further development are constantly and promptly displayed in the customer's product. The offers of AuDaCon range from consulting services to the generation of data and information packages according to customer requirements and to the development of software solutions and online portals. Furthermore the Weikersheimer company addresses itself to the implementation of print products, the development of mounting guidelines, the presentation of error diagnostics and wiring diagrams as well as to the article master combination and support in dealer management systems.
